Point Foundation (Point) empowers the next generation of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer (LGBTQ) leaders to reach their full leadership and academic potential. Point provides its scholars with the financial ability to attend the higher education institution of their choice. In addition, Point provides mentorship, leadership development, and community service training.

Students can apply if they will be enrolled in either a four-year undergraduate program, or a graduate program in the fall of 2017. Note: high school seniors who will begin college in the fall of 2017 are eligible. Applicants are evaluated on academic accomplishment, financial need, leadership within school and community, and goals for the future. Point Scholars agree to maintain a high level of academic performance and complete an annual community service project.

“The Point Foundation Scholarship means having the support of a network of great minds. It’s community. It’s energy. It’s empowerment to make change.”

“The online application for the 2017-2018 academic year is on POINT’S WEBSITE November 2016 through January 2017
